MISS LUCIE MAE GOODBAR WEDS

Illness of Bride's Mother Causes Simple Ceremony at St. John's Methodist Church-Miss Tinker and Miss Schnurmacher Entertain in Honor of Miss Isabel Wallace, Their Former Classmate, Mary Institute-Happenings in Society and Personal Mention.

MISS CARRIE TINKER. These young ladies gave a luncheon and class rem

Miss Lucie Mae Goodbar's marriage yeserday to Doctor Harry Roszelle Barton was a very quiet affair, owing to the illness of Mrs. Goodbar, mother of the bride. It was the original intention to make the sedding a large one, with a subsequent reception, but at the last moment plans were changed and the ceremony made informal, with only a dinner to the bridal party and relatives following:

St. John's Methodist Church, the Reverend Doctor James W. Lee officiating. There were no ushers and guests were confined to intimate friends, who seated themselves informally and who gathered in the vestibule after the ceremony to greet the bride and offer their congratulations. About fifty friends were present. Two little cousins of the bride, the Misses Lucy and Marie Rouzer of Nashville, Tenn., served as flower girls, wearing low-necked white muslin frocks and carrying large shower bouquets of pink carnations. They preceded the bride, who came in with her father, J. W. Goodbar, and wore a robe of cream-colored Cluny lace over white chiffon and satin. She wore no vell, but carried a shower of bride roses. A. I. Epstein played the wedding marches and a short programme before the ceremony.

Decter and Mrs. Barton have gone East

fore the ceremony.

Dector and Mrs. Barton have gone East for their honeymoon. After January 15-thew will be at home at the Goodbar residence, No. 583 Cates avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rouser, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Duncan and Lenoir Gallaway, all of Nashville, arrived yesterday for the wedding.

ENTERTAIN CLASSMATE. Tinker and Miss Schnurmache gave a tea to the members of their Mary Institute class, that of 1900, yesterday afternoon, in honor of Miss Isabel Wallace a class member. Miss Wallace is soon to narry Charles Fiske. The three ladies received, about fifty of their former schoolmates presenting themselves. Miss Schnur-macher was in pink crape de Chine. The decorations were in pink, carnations and roses trimming the serving table. Some of those who found this little reunion a pleasant affair of the holiday season were.

MRS. O'NEILL'S DINNER. Mrs. Joseph O'Neill gave a dinner-dance ast evening at the Washington Hotel for her daughter, Miss Edith O'Neill, who is out this season. One of the private din-ing-rooms was used, with three large tables, two round and one oblong. They were tastefully decorated in Christman red, the center pieces being brilliant scar-let meteor roses and red carnations, with wreaths of holly and holly dinner cards.

After the dinner dancing was enjoyed in an adjoining spartment, where there was a good floor.

Among the buds and beaux who found this affair an event of the week were:

CURRAN'S HURT UNEXPLAINED Justice Cronin's Brother-in-Law Still Unconscious.

The police are making an investigation to ascertain if possible whether Edward Curran, a Street Inspector, who was found unconscious on the walk in front of his home, at No. 1825 O'Fallon street, last home, at No. 1925 O'Fallon street, last Saturday morning, was assaulted or if the injury he sustained was due to an accident.

Curran, who is a brother-in-haw of Justice Cronin, is at the Jefferson Hospital and has not regained consciousness. He is suffering from concussion of the brain. He has made no statement as to how he became injured, and some of his relatives, fearing that he might have been assulted by a robber, although no evidence of robbory has been found, vesterday notified the police, who had not before been told of the matter.

Epilepile's Case Continued. The damage suit against the St. Louis Transit Company instituted by Frank Gundlach, an epileptic who is cared for at Gundach, an epileptic who is cared for at the Insane Asylum, was continued in Judge Foster's division of the Circuit Court yesterday until the next term of court. Doctor Runge, Superintendent of the Insane Asylum, who was ordered by Judge Foster to bring Gundach into court, appeared and stated that Gundlach was not in a condition to attend the trial. Gundlach is not insane, but is a charge of the city and is kept at the asylum because there is no special institution for epileptics.
